

As always, thanks to my friend, Randy, and listen before you all go. Thank you very much for your time, energy, and patience. This is important to all of us. We only give one shot at doing it and if you do it badly, woe be to us from the OMB in the congressional perspective. Tomorrow, we are starting here at 8:45. We have a new whipping boy tomorrow morning. Jim Dray of NEST will be with us in the morning and Jim, as most of you probably know, is largely responsible for the contents of special pub 873, which is the technical implementation, so come armed. Even do a little prereading tonight, so that you are really loaded with good questions for him. Go forth and prosper to quote Spock.

We will also have folks tomorrow. Judy will be back to talk about somethings and it will be a lot more on the technical guidance and technical issues of this.

Several people may be leaving tomorrow. If you have luggage., see me and I will provide a storage room for that on the second floor.

Thank you all very much. You all know what it takes to back in. We hope to have that much better organized tomorrow morning.
